

The Lee Foundation Overseas Medical Bursary Education Fund

The Lee Foundation Overseas Medical Bursary Education Fund is a bond-free bursary offered by Lee Foundation to provide financial aid to Singaporeans studying medicine overseas.

As Singapore's largest private charitable foundation, the Lee Foundation has a meritorious history of altruistic contribution to the advancement of local education and medicine, among other charitable causes, since 1952.

The bursary will complement the Pre-Employment Grant (PEG) offered by MOHH, and bolster efforts to attract Singaporeans to return home to serve in the public healthcare sector. The bursary will be administered by MOHH, on behalf of the Lee Foundation.

The bursary is offered to Singaporean students in Year 2 or 3 of their medical studies in overseas medical schools recognised by the Singapore Medical Council. Recipients would receive S$30,000 in the year of award to support their studies. The bursary is tenable for one academic year. A fresh application is required in each academic year.

Applicants will be considered based on financial need, academic performance and co-curricular achievements. Their gross monthly per capita household income should be S$1,900 or less. Students are also required to undergo an interview with MOHH.

Recipients of the bursary are not required to serve a bond. They are strongly encouraged to apply for the PEG from Year 4 of their medical studies. This allows the students to receive continued financial support, and to return home to grow their medical careers.

More details on the bursary and application process can be found in the following pages.
